The Windmill Hotel, originally known as The Windmill Inn, is an 18th century Coaching House.

The site is particularly famous for its connection with Thomas Paine. Thomas Paine was a radical socialist thinker and is recognised to be one of the forefathers of the United States.

The Windmill Hotel is also known for being the venue of the first Lincolnshire 'Stuff Ball' held in 1785.

The annual ball was established to encourage and promote the local manufactory and industry of the fabric known as 'Lincolnshire Stuff.'
